“ I am so happy that I was able to take my daddy (JC) to see uncle Kermit the end of last year. Both of their healths had started to decline and I wanted to make sure we got one more visit in before something happened. Rest in Paradise Uncle Kermit. I love you and I'll see you again one day💙

*To know him, was to surely love him. A wheeler and a dealer, always out for that bargain! I enjoyed our times together, sweet dear man, with a huge heart!
Will truly miss seeing him coming around! Happy I was able to give him

*Love you Pat, Joanie and family💔

“ My Daddy was the strong and strict military dad that made you respect adults. Say yes sir and yes mam. No talking back and whenever he unbuckled his belt he used it. But for all the discipline, there was so much more love! When I was 12 and so shy that I couldn't even talk to adults, I mustered up the courage to walk down the aisle in a crowded country church to be saved. It was the first time we had visited it and I didn't know anyone. I was so scared. I turned around, and there was my Daddy crying with me, supporting me and loving me. He was such an example for our whole family! He never hung up the phone without saying “if you need anything just call me!” And he meant it! He was always there! I'm gonna miss you Daddy! 😭 But I have faith that I'm gonna see you again someday!
