“ Since I was only 7 when Travis became a member of my family I have lots of memories, however, the one I enjoy remembering the most is those nights when he and his brother, Cletus, would get together in the living room of Travis' & Frances' home and Travis would play his lap steel and Cletus would play his guitar. They always kicked off the evening with "Alabama Jubilee", and since all the windows and doors were open during those hot summer nights, their music entertained the entire neighborhood. Travis was a top notch musician and I'll always remember not only those sounds but see, in my minds eye, he and Cletus and the joy that playing gave them. Thank you, Travis, for the joy you gave me, too.
